

TRIBUTE TO MY LOVING FATHER

The best and most beautiful things in the world cannot be seen or even touched, they must be felt with the heart.

And just like that my life has changed forever, may 25th you woke me up to wished me a happy birthday, showering me with prayers and praises, we both have a lengthy conversation about life and indeed you were full of life, needless did I know that it was going to be our last conversation we are going to have, needless did I know that I was going to spend my birthday with you in the hospital. I have tried so hard to numb all my emotions and pains but it still hurts every day.

We didn't have an ordinary father and son relationship but we talked like two best friends we had each others back, you made me understand that you don't need to have surplus to be a giver but it just takes one to have a good heart and a heart of a giver, and you had those qualities immeasurably. You were a dad who was so special and who was loved so much by so many persons because of the huge impact you made, you brought so much happiness to the many hearts you touched.

You impacted me so much with your wisdom, you made my spiritual life to be solid, my dad taught me that even our most profound losses are survivable, and that it is what we do with that loss and our ability to transform it into a positive event.

I am going to carry your laid down legacy with me forever, dad. I am proud to tell the world that you were my father. REST ON CHAMP.
